South City Plan only makes recommendations which will serve as guides for future potential pedestrian and bicycle projects, but does not obligate or bound the City to adhere to such recommendations, which may be altered by subsequent analyses or decisions, nor would it obligate the City to fund or construct any improvements. Subsequent projects constructed based on the recommendations of the Active South City Plan would be required to undergo separate environmental analysis. Further, the Active South City Plan is intended to make recommendations that would encourage active transportation/pedestrian improvements to address climate change and promote alternate means of transportation, which further contributes to avoiding significant environmental effects. Thus, it is statutorily exempt under Section 15262 of the CEQA Guidelines.

In addition, the City Council also finds, exercising its independent judgement and analysis, based on the record below and the recommendation of the South San Francisco Planning Commission, that the Active South City Bicycle and Pedestrian Master Plan is an update to the previously established Bicycle Master Plan (2011) and Pedestrian Master Plan (2014) and are determined to be within the scope of the 1999 General Plan EIR and 2040 General Plan Update EIR pursuant to CEQA Guidelines section 15162 and 15168.
