I have tried for five years to work within the State-Run, CalFire system, and have been very frustrated. The needs of the Coastside are unique and need a stable work-force. In a state-run agency, there is easy movement of employees all over the state, and presently, as an example, one of our most valued employees, a long-term Coastside resident has been shifted away from the Coastside, in spite of our protests. Needed positions have also remained unfilled. During California fire season, our Coastside firefighters have been held (unable to go home) for three weeks straight because of California mandates to hold ALL firefighters employed by CalFire.

We have developed a timetable and five-year conservative budget to insure that there is long term sustainability with no new taxes and no reduction in service to the Coastside.

After careful study, debate and observation, I join with the other local businessman, Mike Alifano, and retired local firefighter, Gary Riddell, on the Board saying, “We can do better with a local fire department than the one run by State of California!”
